EDITORIAL

Publishing an Armenian Numismatic Journal is perhaps long overdue. This journal, in the form of a newsletter is the only publication devoted strictly to Armenian numismatics. We cannot claim the honor of starting the first Armenian numismatic journalism. That glory belongs to one of the modest members of Mekhitarist Congregation convent of Vienna, the late father C. Sibilian (1851), the great pioneer and father of Armenian numismatics. A century later, this was to reach its climax under the able pen of Dr. P. Z. Bedoukian, a consulting chemist and a brilliant Armenian numismatist.

The collectors of Armenian coins need an organ where they can express the voice of Armenian numismatics. It is this vacuum that the "Armenian Numismatic Journal" intends to fill with a very humble start.

Armenian coins are relatively attractive compared to other coins of the same period. It is this intrinsic beauty of Tigranes II tetradrachm or Levon I tram that is building gradual momentum in the popularity of Armenian coins. Once Armenian medieval coins were strange coins to many numismatists. Today, numismatists of great fame (Armenian and non-Armenian descent) publish articles on Armenian coins. From obscurity of yesterday, it has risen to the recognition of today. The popularity and beauty of Armenian coins is making the Armenian public gradually conscious of an outstanding heritage.

The present membership of the Armenian Numismatic Society, hopefully the nucleus of a new and international organization, intends to offer a forum to all Armenian numismatists and coin collectors who are willing to write and express the voice of Armenian numismatics. This is the journal of all Armenian coin collectors. It is very important for all of us to realize that we depend on our members for articles to publish in this periodical. If you have a unique coin, why not write an article about it? It does not need to be scholarly. The format of a newsletter can be flexible. If you can, we would prefer that it be typed on white paper either in English or Armenian. Be patient and bear with us for our shortcomings. A nice cover and an index will be provided annually for each volume.

We hope that this very modest newsletter eventually will be transformed into an attractive and qualitative numismatic publication. However, all of these plans depend on a growing membership, the number of articles submitted, and generous support of the members.

SARKISSIAN, H.V., Haikakan Harsanekan Medalner - Հայկական Հարսանեկան Մեդալներ (Armenian Wedding Medallions), "Lraber Hasarakakan Gitutiunneri", No. 7 (379), Yerevan, Armenia, 1974, pp. 48-56, 2 pl., illus. In Armenian, half page Russian summary.

Ten different types of Armenian wedding medallions (Gold, silver, bronze) are discussed. Some of these were made by Dutch medallists Martin and Johann Holtzhey in XVIIth century. The medallions are in private collections and museums. Such wedding medallions were popular with the Armenians until XIXth century. In Armenia, to continue and revive this beautiful custom a new wedding medallion was struck in 1972.

In Armenian.

** According to Sarkissian eyewitnesses have claimed that all of these notes were in circulation in Van. However, in the museums of Armenia and Diaspora they can account only for 10, 25, 50, and 100 Ruble notes. The notes were in circulation 22 days only (Feb. 27, 1918 - March 21, 1918). After the evacuation of Van they were exchanged for Transcaucasian Commissariat paper notes of same ruble value. He doubts the existance of 1, 3, 5, 75 Ruble notes.
